

We are partnering with While you were Sleeping & the Labia to show Waiting for Superman in Cape Town at the end of July and would love to have you and your friends at these showings!

Waiting for Superman is a documentary about the Crisis in US education but there are many parallels with our education crisis here in South Africa.

Showtimes at the Labia on Orange cinema:

- Sunday 24 July at 6:15pm
- Monday 25 July at 6:15pm
- Tuesday 26 July at 6:15pm.

Please forward this information to all in your network who care about the future of South Africa!

More about Waiting for Superman:

- Every morning, in big cities, suburbs and small towns across America – as in South Africa – parents send their children off to school with the highest of hopes. But a shocking number of students attend schools where they have virtually no chance of learning – failure factories more likely to produce drop-outs than graduates. And despite decades of well-intended reforms and huge sums of money spent on the problem, public schools haven't improved markedly. Why? There is an answer. And it's not what you think.
- From the director of An Inconvenient Truth, Davis Guggenheim, comes Waiting for 'Superman', a provocative and cogent examination of the crisis of public education in the United States told through multiple interlocking stories – from a handful of students and their families whose futures hang in the balance, to the educators and reformers trying to find real and lasting solutions within a dysfunctional system. Tackling such politically radioactive topics as the power of teachers' unions and the entrenchment of school bureaucracies, Guggenheim reveals the invisible forces that have held true education reform back for decades.

Considering the dire state of our own education system, this documentary is extremely relevant to South Africans.

Tickets are R20 and can be reserved by calling The Labia at (021) 424 5927. We strongly recommended that you reserve tickets to avoid disappointment.
